

Hudson Farmers Market Nurturing Young Entrepreneurs

Published: August 14, 2015 3:37PM

On Saturday, Aug. 15 from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., students from Cuyahoga Valley Christian Academy will have a chance to put basic business skills to the test when they visit Hudson Farmers Market. Hudson Farmers Market, which is sponsored by Hudson Montessori School, is helping the young entrepreneurs learn how to grow a business.

The students are part of a new initiative called The Young Entrepreneur Market (YEM), which was launched by the Young Entrepreneur Institute at University School last year. YEM gives high school and middle school entrepreneurs the opportunity to get real-world experience working with customers. The program is funded by The Burton D. Morgan Foundation and The Veale Foundation.

YEM participants will be at Hudson Farmers Market on Saturday, selling treats and bags made in Rawanda.

For more information about The Young Entrepreneur Market or the Entrepreneur Institute at University School, contact Director Reka Barabas at 216-831-1984.

Hudson Montessori School educates students in preschool through 8th grade, providing them with an environment that helps them develop a true sense of community. The school has its own entrepreneurship program. Young entrepreneurs from Hudson Montessori visit the market periodically throughout the season to offer their homemade products, such as teas and jams.

For more information about Hudson Farmers Market, visit www.hudsonfarmersmarket.org. Follow the market on Facebook and Twitter. Contact Audrey Hylton, market manager, by email at ahylton@hudsonfarmersmarket.org.

